FOREWORD

While there have been laws in the State of Illinois requiring the recording of births, stillbirths, and deaths since 1877, no previous attempt has been made to survey the results of such laws as regards their efficiency and results obtained.

As the first law which became effective in 1877 only required recording of such events with the county clerk, the State Department of Public Health has never been able to determine just what records might be found in any particular county. The method of recording such records in the various counties was not the same and there was no standard of procedure. While in some counties birth certificates are found on file, in many others only book records were made.

As far as county clerks' records are concerned, the publication of this survey is welcomed as it is anticipated that it will be a material aid to this department in many ways. It also should be of benefit to the public at large and shorten the time previously required to obtain a birth record or information relative to such record.

The publication of this survey, in conjunction with the proposed master index which is now being developed in the various counties in connection with the records on file in this department, will be of inestimable value to all concerned.

PREFACE

This Guide to Public Vital Statistics Records in Illinois is the first publication of the Illinois Historical Records Survey specifically intended to aid in national defense work, as well as to be generally useful to government officials, research workers, and the public at large.

On September 3, 1940, in conjunction with the work of the Vital Statistics Division of the Bureau of the Census and with the National Defense Program, the Historical Records Survey in each state was requested to compile a checklist of existing state and local public records of births, marriages, deaths, and divorces, with transcripts, abstracts, or citations of legislation requiring or affecting the keeping of these records. On the basis of the results obtained, it was decided later to publish this data in the form of a vital statistics guide for each of the states.

Divided into separate sections on births, deaths, marriages, and divorces, the Illinois guide lists both state and county records for births and deaths and county records for marriages, since no state records for the latter are kept. As there is no legislation in Illinois requiring the keeping of separate record series for divorces, no records are listed in the divorce section; instead this section is devoted to a legal statement covering divorce jurisdiction and procedure, and the keeping and custody of divorce records. In all sections listing county records, the arrangement is alphabetical by name of county, with records listed chronologically thereunder. Sample birth and death certificates and marriage forms will be found inserted at the end of their respective sections.

In addition to the checklist of records, the guide contains a fully documented introduction covering the history of vital statistics records in Illinois, from territorial days to the present. This essay discusses nongovernmental church recordation as well as governmental recordation, examines the adequacy and completeness of the latter, and contains suggestions for obtaining vital statistics information from governmental records. Charts, tables, and other illustrative matter are included.

For the benefit of those wishing to consult the actual Illinois statutes on the keeping of birth, death, and marriage records, transcripts of all such legislation are contained in an appendix which also includes an alphabetical list of Illinois counties giving information on the formation of each county. An index to the counties in the checklist and a list of publications of the Survey conclude the guide.

Revision of the Presidential Letter of Authority for the Illinois Historical Records Survey was made recently in order to provide for additional national defense assignments which are expected to follow. The regular activities of the project, however, are to continue as far as possible. As is well known by this time, these embrace the compilation and publication of inventories of Federal, state, county, and municipal archives; inventories of church archives and directories of churches; guides to manuscript depositories and collections; calendars of certain selected manuscript collections; and checklists of early American imprints.

This extensive program had its inception in 1936 when a nation-wide Historical Records Survey was organized as part of the Works Progress Administration, now the Work Projects Administration. Under the administration of the Division of Professional and Service Projects, the program was technically supervised by Dr. Luther H. Evans until March 1940, when he was succeeded as National Director by Sargent B. Child. Since February 1941, the Survey in this state has been part of the Illinois Public Records Project. The present official sponsor is the Honorable Dwight H. Green, Governor of Illinois.

The guide was prepared for publication under the direction of Herbert R. Rifkind, State Editor. Martine J. O'Connor supervised the preparation of the checklist of records; Romeo Burwell and Mathew Moran accomplished the legal research on governmental recordation, and Paul M. Reid, the research and investigation on church recordation; tables and charts were drawn by Louis J. Mader; format and collation were supervised by Edward J. McDonough; and typing and mimeographing by Dorothy Herold. The field recheck of the approximately one thousand separate series of vital statistics records in the one hundred and two counties in the state (except Cook County) was accomplished under the supervision of district supervisors Kenneth C. Blood, Victor C. Karcher, David G. McGraw, and Jess J. McMurray. The Cook County records were rechecked directly by personnel of the State Editorial Office.

Grateful acknowledgment is hereby made to Dr. Robert H. Woodruff, State Registrar, Department of Public Health, for an advance reading of the guide and for his foreword. Sample state birth and death certificates and county marriage forms used in the book were graciously supplied by Dr. Woodruff and Michael J. Flynn, County Clerk of Cook County. The cover design was prepared by the Illinois Art Project.

The Guide to Public Vital Statistics Records in Illinois is available for distribution to defense agencies, governmental offices, libraries, schools, and historical societies in Illinois, and defense and governmental agencies and other authorized depositories outside the state. Requests for information concerning this and other publications of the Illinois Historical Records Survey should be addressed to the State Supervisor.

VITAL STATISTICS RECORDS IN ILLINOIS

VITAL STATISTICS RECORDS IN ILLINOIS

Necessity and Importance

Vital statistics are the collectively recorded numerical facts pertaining to births, deaths, marriages, divorces, and other related matters; they are both governmental and nongovernmental in character.

The increased use of vital statistics records in connection with such recent legislation as the old age assistance, child labor, emergency relief, and selective service acts has served to focus the attention of the country upon their necessity and importance. Data compiled from vital statistics records are proving to be of inestimable value in the formulation of social legislation; government offices and agencies engaged in national defense activities also frequently find it necessary to consult them. In addition to their public and governmental uses, vital statistics records are constantly being employed for many private purposes by business firms and various professions.

Birth records are essential in determining questions of parentage, heredity, legitimacy, personal identity, property rights, inheritance, citizenship, and eligibility for selective service. They aid in establishing claims to old age assistance, benefits from workmen's compensation, widows', mothers', and other pensions, and orphans' awards. In many instances they are prerequisites for entrance into schools and the services of the Army and Navy, for employment in occupations, for passports, and for the right to practice professions and hold public office. Proof of age is necessary in reference to the contractual rights and obligations of minors and in determining their legal criminal capacities.

Death records are indispensable in ascertaining the cause of death, relative death rates, ratios of deaths to births, duration of life, and rates of life insurance. They also are valuable in comparing the relative health conditions of different states and communities, in controlling contagious diseases, regulating the management of cemeteries, effecting the shipment of bodies from state to state, and in preventing and detecting crime. They are required for proof of death in the probate of wills, the settlement of estates, the establishment of claims for insurance and pensions, and proof of ancestry and heredity.

Marriage and divorce records are used to decide questions of parentage, heredity, legitimacy, property rights, inheritance, citizenship, pension benefits, marital relationship, for determining certain contractual rights and obligations, and for substantiating claims for exemption from selective service.

Introduction

Governmental Recordation

Births, Deaths

The first legislation in the state of Illinois in regard to the keeping of vital statistics records was enacted in 1819 at the second session of the First General Assembly in a law establishing medical societies to which all practicing physicians were required to belong.[1] One section of this act made it the duty of every physician to keep a record of births, deaths, and diseases occurring within the vicinity of his practice, and to transmit such record to his medical society, whereupon the record was to be published in the newspapers. In 1843 it was provided that a parent could appear before the clerk of the county commissioners' court (present county clerk) and make affidavit as to the birth of a child, and the eldest next of kin of a deceased person could similarly appear and make affidavit as to death.[2] It is probable that the tenor of the above mentioned laws explains the fact that no birth or death records existed in the state prior to 1877 (except in a few scattered counties where the records were at best very fragmentary),[3] since the first law, 1819, required no public records to be kept, and the law of 1842 made recordation voluntary rather than mandatory.

Introduction

The act of 1877 created the State Board of Health with general supervision over the registration of all births and deaths occurring within the state; this act required that all births and deaths in each county be reported to the county clerk by the attending physicians or accoucheurs and that all physicians and accoucheurs in the state register their names and addresses with their county clerk.[4] Teeth were put into this and subsequent laws by providing penalties for non-compliance. In 1901, death certificates issued by physicians, midwives, or coroners, were to be presented to town clerks who as the local registrars issued burial permits and forwarded the certificates to the county clerk.[5] In 1903, the requirement as to burial permits was omitted and certificates of deaths were to be turned over to the State Board of Health, which then delivered to the county clerk all certificates so received.[6]

The system of registration was completely revised in 1915, when the state was divided into registration districts and the duty of recording births and deaths was placed in the hands of local registrars and subregistrars who were required to report to both the county clerk and the State Board of Health.[7] The local registrars were required to deposit annually with the county clerk of their respective counties complete sets of records for births, stillbirths, and deaths registered with them. Each month they were required to transmit to the State Board of Health all original certificates registered by them; copies of certificates or a recordation of the same in a form approved and prescribed by the State Board of Health were to be kept by the local registrars. The county clerk was charged with binding and indexing, or recording, and safekeeping of all vital statistics records deposited with him.[8] From the act of 1877 to the present, the county clerk has been required to retain the abstracts and certificates, keep a record of births and deaths, maintain alphabetical indexes, and issue certified copies of certificates upon request. He has also been required to prepare a register of all physicians and accoucheurs in the county.[9]

In 1931 it was made possible to get a new certificate of birth under the new name in the case of an adopted child,[10] and two years later the same privilege was granted to an illegitimate child in case of the intermarriage of the child's parents.[11]

Marriages

Illinois legislation requiring the keeping of marriage records go back to the days of the Northwest,[12] Indiana,[13] and Illinois territories.[14] These territorial laws authorized persons to be joined in marriage either after obtaining a license or publishing their intention to marry at least two weeks before such marriage. When Illinois became a state the first General Assembly passed legislation continuing the right of persons desiring to marry to secure a license or publish their intention to marry prior to the performance of the ceremony. However, the certificate was still required to be filed with the clerk of the county commissioners' court by the person performing the ceremony.[15] It was not until 1877 that the securing of marriage licenses was made mandatory.[16] The laws then remained in status quo until 1937 when a provision was added requiring marriage license applicants to undergo a medical examination[17] and make application announcing intent to marry not less than three days and not more than thirty days prior to the ceremony.[18] In April 1941 that part of the provision requiring an application to be made was abolished and now no notice of intent is required.[19]

Divorces

There has been little legislation pertaining to the keeping of divorce records in this state. In territorial days divorces were granted by the territorial legislature[20] and courts.[21] In early statehood, jurisdiction over divorces was vested in the legislature[22] and the circuit courts,[23] and both kept records. Later, the Constitution of 1848 prohibited the exercise of this jurisdiction by the General Assembly[24] and now only courts having general chancery jurisdiction grant divorces.[25] Since there is no legislation requiring the keeping of separate series of divorce records or files, they only are to be found spread over the regular chancery records and dockets, and among the regular court or chancery files.

Church Recordation

Active Churches

At the present, there is no data on the extent or scope of church recordation of vital statistics in Illinois. However, as the Illinois Historical Records Survey of the Work Projects Administration progresses with that phase of its program which has for its objective the surveying of church archives and the publishing of inventories for all denominations in the state, such information gradually will become available. When the church archives survey is completed the publication of a guide to church vital statistics records in Illinois will become feasible. That such a guide would prove an important and valuable supplement to the public records guide is almost certain, especially when it is realized that churches of many denominations were founded before Illinois became a state, and that their records, including vital statistics, antedate public records in certain instances.

Among the one hundred and eleven church bodies having ten or more local churches in the State of Illinois, there is no uniformity of church law or of practice in the keeping of church records of vital statistics. Only a few of the religious bodies have church laws dealing with them. In most bodies, however, there is a common practice within the denomination regarding the method of keeping registers of vital statistics. On the basis of church law or common practices they fall into the following four divisions:

A. Roman Catholic Church. Canon law requires the officiating clergyman to keep in the rectory, in a series of separate volumes, vital statistics covering baptisms, confirmations, marriages, and burials.[26] These records are subject to annual or biennial inspection by the Bishop of the Diocese.

Protestant Episcopal Church. Church law states that it shall be the duty of the minister in charge of a local church "to keep a Parish Register of baptisms, confirmations, marriages and burials, and the names of the communicants within his cure."[27] This register, usually a single volume, is kept in the custody of the rector and is subject to biennial inspection by the Bishop of the Diocese.

Salvation Army. The Central Territorial Headquarters require the officer in charge of each Corps (church) to keep accurate records of membership, baptisms, marriages, and deaths on regular printed forms. These records are inspected semi-annually by the Divisional Commander or his delegate.[28]

B. Presbyterian Church, USA. In this denomination there is no law of the General Assembly governing the keeping of vital statistics, but each Presbytery usually adopts a body of rules on this matter, and practice is fairly uniform throughout the country. The "Rules for Keeping Sessional Records" adopted by the Presbytery of Chicago on September 11, 1933, require the Clerk of the Session to record only baptisms and church membership. Clergymen in charge of local churches, however, keep additional marriage and burial records. All four items are usually kept in a standard register book, in which the date of birth is recorded along with the baptismal entry and the date of death is shown with the burial entry.

United Lutheran Church. Here the minister of each local church is required to keep an accurate record of his ministerial acts;[29] this record includes data on baptisms, confirmations, marriages, and burials. The date of birth is not required on baptismal entries. The practice of other Lutheran bodies follows the same procedure.

C. Methodist Episcopal Church. There is no rule for the keeping of vital statistics in this denomination. Most Methodist ministers do keep a register of baptisms, marriages, members, and burials. Some also keep confirmation or preparatory records. All such records are kept in the church or parsonage in custody of the minister.[30]

Congregational and Christian Church, Evangelical and Reformed Church. In neither of these is there any church law regarding the keeping of vital statistics. It is the common practice in both bodies for the minister to keep a register of baptisms, marriages, burials and membership.[31]

Church of Christ Disciples. No church law for this body governs the keeping of vital statistics. The minister usually, the clerk occasionally, keeps a register of members, baptisms, and deaths.[32]

D. Baptist Bodies. Among the Baptists there are no rules for the keeping of registers, since the individual church is autonomous. The custom is well established, however, for the minister to keep a register of baptisms, marriages, and deaths. This custom serves almost as an unwritten law. The register is kept as a part of the record of ministerial acts.[33]

Jewish Bodies. Practices regarding the keeping of vital statistics vary greatly among the Jews; in no case does any church law govern the practice. In instances where an Orthodox, Conservative, or Reform congregation owns a cemetery, cemetery records are usually kept giving data on deaths and burials. Death records are frequently kept by all three bodies as supplements to or in place of cemetery records, and all keep membership records. Confirmants' records are kept only by the Conservative and Reform bodies. Only Reform bodies keep marriage records and even here the practice is not general. Often data on deaths is simply entered in the minute book of a Jewish congregation. There are few Jewish record books of vital statistics that date before 1920 in Illinois.[34]

Church of Christ, Scientist. There are no Christian Science regulations governing the keeping of vital statistics. It is the custom for the Reader to keep a record of marriages and deaths.[35]

Defunct Churches

In respect to vital statistics records of defunct churches in Illinois, there have been no defunct churches in the Roman Catholic body since the time of the French occupation.[36] In the Protestant Episcopal Church, record books of defunct churches, if preserved, are filed in the diocesan headquarters. Whenever the records of a dissolved Corps of the Salvation Army are preserved, they are filed in the Divisional or Territorial Office. Records of dissolved Presbyterian churches, if preserved, are usually placed in the hands of the Stated Clerk of the Presbytery for safekeeping. In some cases where a church is dissolved because of merger with another church, the records of the dissolved church will be kept by the existing institution. Register books of defunct or dissolved churches of other religious bodies listed above are very difficult to locate. There seems to be no general practice regarding the preservation or filing of such records.

Obtaining Vital Statistics Information from Governmental Records

To establish facts of births, deaths, or marriages in Illinois, the various vital statistics files, records, and indexes kept by each county clerk should be consulted. While the indexes generally cover the records and registers only, in some counties they also take in the files of unbound certificates. In respect to births and deaths, where the county in which the event took place is unknown, recourse also should be had to the records and indexes kept by the State Department of Public Health. No state records of marriages are kept. Copies of birth, death, and stillbirth certificates may be obtained, upon payment of a fee of fifty cents, from the State Department of Public Health and from any county clerk or local registrar.[37] Fees for copies of marriage certificates vary from county to county, but the average is about one dollar. Since no separate divorce records are required to be kept, in order to locate such records it is necessary to determine the court in which the decree was granted. The clerk of the court has in his possession the dockets and indexes to the chancery records and files wherein the decree will be found.

Adequacy and Completeness of Records

It is unfortunately true that in Illinois, in common with the rest of the country, the proper preservation and indexing of vital statistics records (like county records in general) have been greatly neglected.. The older records are frequently badly preserved and arranged. Disintegration and destruction of records are constantly taking place because of the hazards of dirt, fire, and water, or the inroads of insect and animal pests. The need for better storage space and facilities is almost universal.

Indexes of vital statistics records in particular are not up-to-date, and in many counties they are woefully inadequate. Mindful of this situation, the State Department of Public Health, in conjunction with the Work Projects Administration, now is sponsoring a Vital Statistics Project to compile a master index of all state and county birth records. Other master indexes for vital statistics may be expected to follow.

The indexing of birth certificates as set up by this project is designed to facilitate the completion of searches and aid county clerks and local registrars in filling promptly the numerous requests for certified copies of birth certificates. This is accomplished by first arranging the certificates in the desired order and then punching on standard tabulating cards all the pertinent information for establishing identity given on the birth certificate. The key-punched card is electrically tabulated, printing all of this information on a single line. Additional statistical information appearing on the birth certificate is also punched on the tabulating card, thus making possible the completion of more accurate tables and other compilations of birth statistics. State and county indexes, covering the period 1878 to date, will be arranged chronologically and alphabetically, ready for binding. The State Department of Public Health will maintain the index subsequent to 1940.

Conclusion.

In conclusion, it may be stated that, since 1920, Illinois has been ranked among the leading states in regard to progressive vital statistics legislation. With supervision of births and deaths in the hands of the State Department of Public Health and with local registration mandatory upon penalty of being prosecuted for misdemeanor, this important state and county function is being carried out effectively. The present marriage laws requiring medical examinations for both parties and witnessed signatures of the examined on the medical certificate, is modern in every respect.[38] And while there are no laws regarding the keeping of separate

INFORMATION AND INSTRUCTIONS RELATIVE TO BIRTH REGISTRATION IN THE STATE OF ILLINOIS

As the first Law requiring the registration of births in Illinois did not become effective until 1877, individuals born previous to that time are advised that official records of such birth are not available at any place. It is not possible therefore for such persons to establish proof of their age by means of a birth certificate that was made and filed at the time of the birth.

A method by which such individuals may establish proof of their age has been made possible by the United States Census Bureau, at Washington. The census taken in 1900 has now been indexed, and by advising the Bureau of the name, the parents' names and the address in 1900, a person may obtain proof of his, or her age at that time. This would quite naturally establish proof of such person's age at the present time.

The Law which became effective in this State in 1877 only required that births be recorded with the County Clerk of the County in which the birth occurred. This Law continued in effect until 1915, but as many births occurring at that interval of time were not attended by a physician or midwife, such births were never registered. If a record of the birth was made and filed at the time of its occurrence, it should be found in the office of the County Clerk.

The present existing Law to provide for the registration of all births, stillbirths and deaths in the State of Illinois, which repealed the previous Law, became effective in 1915 but really did not become operative until the following year. This Law requires that all births be recorded with the local registrar of the district in which the birth occurs, such local registrar being either the town or the village clerk, or if the birth was in a rural community the township or road district clerk. The local registrar is required to make two copies of the birth certificate, one for his own files and a copy for the County Clerk, after which the original certificate is forwarded to this Department. A record of the birth is thereby established in three places, and the Law provides that a certified copy of the record may be obtained from the County Clerk, from the local registrar, or from this Department upon the payment of a fee of fifty cents.

ESTABLISHING DELAYED BIRTH RECORDS

While the present Law provides that a delayed birth record may be established, this procedure is governed by certain regulations and restrictions. To avoid duplication of birth records in the case of births occurring between 1877 and 1915, it must be determined that a birth record is not on file in the office of the County Clerk before attempting to establish a delayed birth record. For the same reason individuals born after 1915 must ascertain whether or not there is a record of the birth on file with this Department.

INSTRUCTIONS

Blank birth certificate forms and affidavits issued by this Department must always be used when preparing a record of a birth occurring in this State. When preparing a delayed birth certificate, all items required on the certificate should be completed as applying at the time of the birth, that is, the place of the birth, the residence of the parents, and the ages of the parents should refer to the actual time that the birth occurred and not to the present time. Do not show the present address, or ages at such items, or state that the parents are deceased. The certificate must be prepared with pen and ink, or typewriter, and not with a lead pencil as it is intended as a permanent record.

In those cases where it is possible to obtain the signature of the physician or midwife who attended at the birth, all that is required in establishing a delayed birth record is a properly prepared certificate, on a form issued by this State, signed by such physician or midwife.

When it is not possible to obtain the signature of the birth attendant, the completed certificate may be signed by a member of the individual's immediate family who was living at the time of the birth, that is, a blood relation. Certificates signed by "relatives by marriage", or by neighbors or friends will not be accepted under any circumstances. In cases where the certificate is signed by a member of the family, the relationship, and the present address of such individual, as well as the date of signing must be shown with the signature. Also, in all such cases the certificate must be accompanied by an affidavit, on a form issued by this State, completed before a Notary or other person qualified to administer the required oath.

ALL CERTIFICATES AND AFFIDAVITS THAT HAVE NOT BEEN PREPARED IN KEEPING WITH THE ABOVE INSTRUCTIONS WILL BE REJECTED AND NOT FILED FOR RECORD

In the case of births occurring previous to 1915 outside of the City of Chicago, the completed certificate and affidavit should be forwarded directly to this Department. In the case of births occurring after 1915, the certificate and affidavit prepared to establish a delayed birth record may either be filed with the local registrar of the district in which the birth occurred, or forwarded directly to this Department.

In the case of births occurring in the City of Chicago, regardless of the year of occurrence, the certificate and affidavit must be filed with the Board of Health of that City, at 54 West Hubbard Street, and a filing fee of twenty-five cents is required to be forwarded with the certificate and affidavit.

OBTAINING CERTIFIED COPIES

The Statutes provide that a certified copy of a birth record may be obtained upon the payment of a fee of fifty cents. This copy may be obtained from the local registrar, from the County Clerk, or directly through this Department.

When the certified copy is obtained from the Board of Health of Chicago, the fee of fifty cents should be remitted to that Board in the form of a Money Order. When the certified copy is obtained from this Department, the remittance of the fifty cent fee should be in the form of a Money Order, payable to the "Director of Public Health".

PERSONAL CHECKS OR STAMPS WILL NOT BE ACCEPTED BY THIS DEPARTMENT

The Attorney General of Illinois has ruled that a delayed birth certificate, prepared in keeping with the provisions of the Statutes and the regulations of this Department, shall have the same probative value in Court as a certificate that was made and filed for record at the time the birth occurred.

While this Department will file for record any birth certificates, or certificates and affidavits that have been properly prepared, and will also issue a certified copy of the same upon payment of the Statutory fee of fifty cents, the Department cannot guarantee that such certified copy will be accepted in all channels as proof of birth, age, etc. At the present time, some employers of labor, civil service commissions, and others requiring proof of birth and age will only accept as such proof, birth certificates that were made and filed at the time of the birth.

Blank birth certificates and affidavits for use in establishing delayed birth records may be obtained from this Department at any time upon request.

divorce records (since the granting of divorces is purely a judicial function, they are handled in common with all other chancery cases by courts having such jurisdiction) it may be said with truth that Illinois divorce legislation follows a sane and moderate middle course. It is neither so loose and casual as to make for free and easy divorces in divorce mills throughout the state, nor is it so reactionary and hide-bound as to make legitimate divorces obtainable only through perjury, manufactured evidence, and other unethical practices.

39. From 1788 to 1877 persons could be joined in marriage after obtaining a license or publishing their intention to marry at least two weeks previous to such marriage in the church or congregation to which the parties, or one of them belonged. When a license was used, the officer celebrating the marriage made out a certificate of the marriage and returned the same, with license to the clerk who issued the license and when publication was used a certificate was made out and filed with the clerk (Theodore Calvin Pease, ed., Laws of the Northwest Territory, 1788-1800, v. VII, Illinois Historical Collections, Law Series, I, 22,23; Francis S. Philbrick, ed., Laws of Indiana Territory, 1801-1807, v. INSTRUCTIONS FOR COMPLETING A DELAYED BIRTH REGISTRATION

The information required in connection with this birth concerns the facts existing at the time of the birth, not the present time. All questions must be answered as fully as is possible.

If possible the certificate must be signed by the Physician or the Midwife who attended at the birth.

If the certificate is properly completed and the signature of the birth attendant is obtained, no other procedure is necessary to establish a record of the birth.

If the signature of the Physician or Midwife cannot be obtained, the father or mother, or a member of the immediate family, may sign the certificate after it has been completed. This signature must be made in the presence of, and notarized by, a notary public or other person qualified to administer oaths.

If the birth occurred in the City of Chicago, the certificate and affidavit must be filed with the Board of Health of that City. A fee of 25 cents is charged by that Board for filing such papers.

A certified copy of a birth record may be obtained in the State of Illinois upon the payment of the Statutory fee of 50 cents. In the case of certified copies obtained in Chicago, the fee should be submitted in the form of a Postal or Express Money Order payable to the "City Collector of Chicago."

When the certified copy is obtained from the State Department of Public Health, the fee must be submitted in the form of a similar order made payable to the Director of Public Health. Personal checks will not be accepted.

WHITE FORM V. S. No. 4 MUST BE USED. N.B.—Every item of information should be carefully supplied. "AGE should be stated EXACTLY." Physicians should state CAUSE OF DEATH in plain terms, so that it may be properly classified. Exact statement of occupation is very important. See instructions on back of certificate.

UNITED STATES STANDARD CERTIFICATE OF DEATH

Statement of occupation—Precise statement of occupation is very important, so that the relative healthfulness of various pursuits can be known. Make some entry in this section for every person aged 10 years or over. If the deceased had retired from business, report the occupation prior to retirement. Children not gainfully employed may be returned as at school or at home. For a woman whose only occupation was that of home housework, write housewife in answer to Question 10 and own home in answer to Question 11. For a person engaged in domestic service for wages, however, designate the occupation by the appropriate terms, as servant—private family, cook—hotel, etc. For a person who had no occupation whatever write none.

To be complete, an occupation return must state:

10—The trade, profession, or particular kind of work done.

11—The industry or business in which the work was done.

In stating the occupation, avoid the use of such indefinite terms as "employee," "worker," "operative," etc. Find out the particular kind of work done and return that, as spinner, weaver, etc.

In stating the industry or business, avoid the use of such general terms as "store," "factory," "mill," etc. State the particular kind of store, factory, mill, etc., as grocery store, soap factory, cotton mill, etc.

Distinguish carefully the different kinds of engineers by stating the full descriptive titles, as civil engineer, mechanical engineer, mining engineer, stationary engineer, etc. Avoid the term "laborer" when a more precise statement of the occupation can be secured. Do not use the word "mechanic," but give the exact occupation, as carpenter, painter, machinist, etc. Distinguish carefully between retail merchants and wholesale merchants. A person who sells goods should be called a salesman and not a clerk.

Statement of cause of death—Cause of death means the disease, injury, or complication which causes death, NOT the mode of dying, e.g., heart failure, asphyxia, asthenia, etc. As principal cause name the disease or injury causing death. As related causes, name earlier morbid conditions, if any, related to the principal cause and any important complication of the principal cause. Under other contributory causes of importance, name other important diseases or injuries.

NOTE: All deaths from "violence, casualty, accident, or any undue means" must be referred to the coroner: A MEDICAL CERTIFICATE OF DEATH IN SUCH CASES DOES NOT COMPLY WITH THE REGISTRATION LAW OF ILLINOIS. See Section 10, Coroner's Act.

Coroner's cases as specified by Section 10 of the Coroner's Act (as amended by Act of 1931).

All cases of "violence—casualty—undue means".

Any "death occurring without medical attendance".

The death certificate shall be issued and signed by the Coroner or Deputy Coroner in all of the above stated cases.

A complete transcript of the findings of the Coroner's jury is not desired, but "cause and manner of death" (Sec. 10 of the Coroner's Act) must be concisely stated.

The Coroner of the county in which "a body is found lying" has jurisdiction in the holding of an inquest. He loses jurisdiction if the body is removed from his county before an inquest is held—even though such removal is illegal.

A dead body "shall not be interred or disinterred, deposited in a vault or tomb, cremated or otherwise disposed of, or removed from or into or from place to place in any registration district,.....unless a permit for burial, removal or other disposition thereof shall have been properly issued". (Sec. 5 of the Vital Statistics Act).

The following terms are not sufficient and must be further explained:

Accident—suicide—homicide—injury—external causes—violence—drowning—gun shot—burns—fracture—natural causes—sudden death—old age.

All deaths from "violence, casualty, accident, or any undue means" must be referred to the coroner; A MEDICAL CERTIFICATE OF DEATH IN SUCH CASES DOES NOT COMPLY WITH THE REGISTRATION LAW OF ILLINOIS. See Sec. 10, Coroner's Act

INFORMATION

Marriage Licenses

NOTE: Applications for a marriage license may be made to the County Clerk not sooner than one (1) day nor later than fifteen (15) days after the date that the physician made the examination as certified by him.

A license to marry in Cook County can be obtained by either residents or non-residents of the State of Illinois at the office of the County Clerk, Room 233, Court House (situated corner Clark and Washington Streets), Chicago, between the hours of 9:00 o'clock A. M. and 5:00 o'clock P. M., any week day (excepting holidays and excepting Saturday, when the closing hour is 12 o'clock noon).

Males must be of the age of 21 years or over; females 18 years or over; provided, however, that males between 18 and 21 and females between 16 and 18 may procure license through the sworn consent of parent or guardian. In cases where males are only 21 or where females are over 18 and under 21, they will be required to present proper proof of age.

The presence before the County Clerk of both parties to the contemplated marriage is required.

The law of Illinois makes the following described marriages void:

Blood relatives down to cousins of the first degree, idiots and lunatics.

The Uniform Marriage Evasion Law of Illinois makes the marriage prohibitions and obligations of all other States applicable to Illinois.

No license will be issued by the county clerk's office to non-resident persons prohibited from intermarrying by divorce decrees or by the laws of the jurisdiction where they reside.

Non-residents whose home jurisdiction requires the giving of public notice of intention to marry or whose laws require the furnishing of a Doctor's certificate or other obligations will be required to furnish a certificate by the proper home officer stating that such requirements have been complied with or where dispensation has been granted, releasing the persons concerned from such obligations.

Persons, resident and non-resident, desiring to marry shall within fifteen (15) days prior to the issuance of a license to marry, be examined by any duly licensed physician as to the existence or non-existence in such person of any venereal disease, and it shall be unlawful for the county clerk of any court to issue a license to marry to any person who fails to present for filing with such county clerk a certificate setting forth that such person is free from venereal diseases as nearly as can be determined by a thorough physical examination, and attached thereto laboratory reports (by approved Illinois laboratories or State Board of Health of foreign states only) of microscopical examination for the gonococcus for gonorrhea and the blood Wasserman test or Kahn test for syphilis. Such laboratory examination shall upon the request of any physician in the State be made free of charge by either the State Department of Public Health or the Health Department of cities, villages and incorporated towns maintaining Health Departments. The certificate required herein must be signed in the presence of the physician by the person examined and shall be filed with the application for license to marry.

Examinations may be made only by physicians licensed in Illinois.

The fee for a marriage license is Three Dollars ($3.00).

Persons obtaining licenses in Cook County may not use the license to marry in any other County.

Physicians' certificate forms will be supplied by the County Clerk upon application.

Licenses issued on or after July 1, 1937, are void thirty (30) days after the date of issuance.

Michael J. Flynn

County Clerk.

DIVORCE RECORDS

There is no legislation in Illinois requiring the keeping of separate series of divorce records. Divorces are granted only by courts having general chancery jurisdiction,[1] and generally the decrees, abstracts of proceedings, and other documents are simply spread over the regular chancery records and dockets and filed with other chancery papers in the regular court or chancery files.

In all counties in the state the circuit and city courts hear divorce suits. In addition, the superior court of Cook County in Chicago also exercises jurisdiction over divorces. In all cases, the records are in the custody of the respective court clerks. Fees for copies of divorce decrees average about one dollar.

State records of births and deaths are set up in regular entries, following the style and form used in the published inventories of the county archives of Illinois.

County records are listed in abbreviated checklist form, showing inclusive dates, type of record, number of volumes or file containers, arrangement, and indexing. Omission of the indexing item indicates that the record is not indexed.

The name of the county seat of each county appears in parentheses following the name of the county.
